

Modern Slavery Act Statement

Babcock is an international company and we are committed to conducting our dealings, whether with customers, suppliers, employees or the communities in which they are based, with the utmost integrity. This means that all our businesses, wherever they are located in the world and wherever they have dealings in the world, are required to respect people and to value their diversity.

and contributions are welcomed and valued. This approach is enshrined in our Babcock Code of Conduct, as well as our attitude to health and safety.

Our business is principally involved in the delivery of highly technical and complex engineering services to pre-dominantly governmental or blue chip customers, about 90% of whom are located in the UK, Europe, North America or Australasia. As such we believe that our exposure to the risks of modern slavery is low within our own business. However, this assessment will be kept under review and if circumstances change we will have no hesitation in instituting additional actions.

Although we believe that our exposure to the risks of modern slavery is low, we are not complacent. We understand that, if we are to be successful in delivering our strategy for growth, then we must make sure that we interact with our employees, customers and others properly.

establishes a set of 8 principles that outline the behaviours that we expect from all our people within our business. These are:

Build relationships based on trust

Never compromise health and safety

Respect people and value their diversity
